

When a sufficiently long shoulder projection in the neighborhood of .75 to 1.25 inches is provided, the cable guard rod r shown in Figure 1 can be eliminated because the projections 63 on the eccentric pulley assemblies 58 and ~~59~~ hold the cables 56 and 54 sufficiently apart so that they do not touch one another or imperil the arrow feathers when the arrow is released. In the embodiment where an idler pulley is used in place of the upper eccentric, a hub part, of selected axial projection inwardly, may be used to locate the idler pulley track in vertical alignment with the lower eccentric base cam track.

REMARKS

Examination of this application, as amended, on its merits is respectfully requested.

This application is a division of U.S. application Serial No. 10/047,644, now patent No. 6,718,963. The patent includes Figure 9. This application includes a description of Figure 9. However, Figure 9 was left out of this application as filed by mistake and without any intent to deceive. Figure 9 shows the vibration dampening limb receptor cup 32 clearly.

However, the limb receptor Cup 32 is shown in Figures 6, 7, and 7A. A modified version of the limb receptor cup is shown in Figure 9A. The cup 32 is also described in the specification. Figure 9 does not therefore disclose any new matter.

Applicant elects the species of claims 5 through 15 directed to a compound bow having a riser limb seats and vibration damping limb cups that receive limb inner ends. The vibration damping limb cups are shown in Figures 6, 7, 7A, 9 and 9A. Figures 11 And 11A disclose an additional component of the vibration dampening system. The election is without traverse.

The preliminary amendment to the Specification includes incorrect page numbers and line numbers to identify the two paragraphs that are amended. The page and line numbers used were correct for the parent application. This amendment should be entered in place of the preliminary amendment to insure the application is clear.

Applicant expects to file a divisional application on the non-elected claims at a later date. The non-elected claims have not therefore been canceled.

Consideration of this application as amended and allowance is respectfully requested.

Respectfully submitted,

Mark G. Wheeler
